I don't see myself as a resident of my ward at all or feel like it has a persona or anything to connect to. That's not to say that it has no amenities. I have the luxury of being able to travel to any spaces I want to and that may influence how I see it, but there is no loyalty. If we need to be carved into areas for political reasons then so be it, but I know from other residents that the area identity tends not to follow electoral wards. I would rather be represented for my demographic or interests than geography.
