As Haughton and Great Burdon appear to have historically been village's that have been absorbed as Darlington town has expanded and have their own identities, it seems to me to keep them as such and make the newer areas of Springfield and Whinfield the third. I have no idea how this affects the number of councillors for each area. There seems to be an informal distinction that already exists between Wylam Hill area and the nature reserve, which to me does not really have distinct boundaries, unless I am missing something.
