I would like to object to the proposed southern boundary of North Road ward. Having previously lived on Melland Court (off of Melland Street) and currently living on North Road, I do not feel that there is any meaningful relationship between this area and North Road. The shops, supermarkets and social clubs that we made use of during that time were all located either in the town centre or further along Yarm Road (B6280) and Neasham Road. I would say that the only time we used North Road was when we were heading out of town!

I feel that the southern boundary of North Road ward would make more sense to follow the line of the B6279 until it meets the railway near Darlington college (marked in blue on the attached screenshot). The area south of this would fit more in character and community with either Albert Hill, Hundens and Red Hall, or with Park East. These are both linked by easily walkable routes, whereas there are limited crossings of the B6279 to link to the rest of North Road.
