Related subject: Haughton Le Skerne

I oppose the proposed boundary change affecting Haughton le Skerne because it risks weakening the area's strong local identity and sense of community. Haughton le Skerne has its own history, character, and established relationships between residents, local organisations, and services. Altering its boundaries could create confusion over representation, reduce the community's influence on local decision-making, and separate neighbourhoods that have long been connected. Any boundary changes should be supported by clear evidence that they will deliver significant benefits, and without that reassurance, it is better to preserve the existing boundaries to protect the interests and identity of local residents.
