I want to comment on the potential change of boundary from Poppleton to Acomb. The Liberal Democrats supplied information but nothing from Labour. Some points:

- There's no clear reason for this change. It's unnecessary.
- The area has long standing ties to Poppleton.
- I bought a house in Poppleton, not Acomb. Acomb is associated with a higher crime area.
- It's not clear what the impact will be regarding car insurance, house insurance and indeed council tax. Most likely everything will go up (again).
- Will there be an impact to property prices? Most likely downward.

I am against this change. However, I suspect the decision has already made. It will be pushed through irrespective of local feeling. This reflects a growing impression that we live where government/council decisions are being made like a dictatorship than a democracy. Rather than focusing on what makes people's live better, things like this are on the agenda. Appalling.
