As a resident of Fishergate ward, I approve of the amalgamation proposed with Fulford as both areas share many of the same facilities, demographics and interests. I think the same applies to the proposal to merge Foxwood and Woodthorpe. However I am puzzled by the arrangements proposed around Derwenthorpe, which appears to be divided between Heworth Without and Derwenthorpe/Tanghall. Why? The new ward boundaries on the west of the city around Dringhouses, Clifton and Acomb seem logical and well-defined. The Derwent ward seems to cover a very wide geographical area. Could the proposed 2 councillors properly serve so many communities? Broadly speaking I think the plan is well thought out, with one or two minor quibbles.
Thank you
