From both personal and work experience, having Chirton Ward and an estate called Chirton Grange (which is in Collingwood Ward) is very confusing. Eventhough they aren't geographically too far away, there is a big difference when it comes to housing and amenities/public transport. So differentiating these may be beneficial. In relation to the boundary changes, I am supportive of them. To me the Ward is not important, but the support is. Unfortunately it seems that in a lot of wards you have to actively seek out your Ward Councillor if you have an issue, otherwise wait until election time for them to resurface!
