The ward boundaries have not kept pace with some large housing developments. Valley and Killingworth being the two major wards affected. The existing boundaries are already arbitrary, it may be convenient to use major roads, but this destroys long standing communities which no longer have links. My view is that councils forget the role of a councillor is to serve residents, the present system means that all residents do not have the appropriate representation on the council, that is not democratic by any means. The boundary review is for the benefit of the residents, not councillors.
