I think that Leverington stands perfectly well on its own, as a small rural community and with a very strong sense of community and pride in our village. There is nothing to be gained by tacking it on to Wisbech, which is a very different area with very little sense of community as I can see, it always looks very unkemp and no one seems to be very keen to tackle the issues that it has. I and many others in the village have no wish to be associated with it, I would appreciate the council taking on this comments when any decisions are being made Regards [REDACTED]
