I think increasing the ward boundaries is a terrible idea and increasing the number of councillors is a waste of money. Councillors have taken sabbatical to assist with fostering and illness and things still done. Gone are the days where you have surgeries and reply my letter. All case work is generally done by email and not too strenuous. If anything you should be considering dropping the number of councillors. Bitterne Ward should also have its name changed as it actually covers very little of bitterne. I often get case wok then forward it on as residents rightly think Bitterne issue to a bitterne councillor. I think it would be a huge mistake to add an additional boundary and a waste of tax payers money. It would also be seen as this by residents.
