To Whom it may concern.

I have recently been made aware ,information received from a neighbour, that a change of boundary and identity is planned for the residents of Coalway Road ,Penn, Wolverhampton.

As a resident of Penn for over forty years, I find this proposal both disturbing and high handed; totally disregarding the Penn community and its strong feeling of identity.

For those of us who live here ,Coalway Road forms a natural and distinct boundary between Penn and Pennfields : certainly not Graisleigh, an area with which we have no affiliation or connection. Each area has its own singular identity : its people its housing and its local facilities, in much the same way as Merryhill, Tettenhall Regis and Tettenhall Wightwick : yet these wards are not for dramatic change.

Those initiating these changes have, on no occasion, communicated their intentions in writing , to those people who will be affected : a situation which I find very discourteous and blatantly rude in the extreme.

Perhaps this is just another example of faceless bureaucrats determining, without consultation, the lives of real people.

I shall await a reply to my objections, before any decisions are finalised.
