I live on Leys Rd and feel a very strong connection with Timperley North (and central) NOT Broadheath. The boundary has been drawn along the canal, which is completely irrelevant today. It is the A56 which defines the social / environmental circles / hub with which me and my family associate. I think everyone else in the small triangle bordered by A56, Timperley North and Brooklands (plus tiny bit if Altrincham) in the proposed boundaries would say the same. Park road is our "corridor" which naturally joins us to Timperley. The A56 is a physical and mental barrier, and as such we are quite isolated from what most people regard as Broadheath. Please redraw the boundary along the A56 rather than the canal. Thanks
