Derwent ward No one really recognises what it is. In conversation with family and friends across the area over the years this has always caused a lot of confusion. The northern end of the area identifies very clearly as either Breadsall Estate or Breadsall Hill Top, depending on who you talk too and the entire lower end clearly identify as Chaddesden. To my knowledge that leads many into thinking they live in the next door ward. I didn't understand it myself until I looked into it. Even then it took a while for it to sink in. Having looked at these new proposed boundaries they are the best they will get to being linked to the community identities that exist across the area. There is the slight anomaly of the North Chaddesden bit, but even then they would have more in common with the Breadsall Estate/Hill Top area compared to the lower Chaddesden end. Overall I am pleased that these very different communities have been recognised by yourselves.
