Speaking as a Speke resident, I'm glad that the split between my ward and Garston is being considered. With Speke's green spaces and parks being given away by the council for more and more housing, the population of our area has grown hugely. It has become increasingly hard to get replies from our local councillors, who also cover Garston at this time, and trying to get answers to our concerns is almost impossible. A lot of people have given up even reporting issues because it is considered a waste of time. That is because of a lack of action on the council's part, but if a resident can't even get an answer from their local councillors in Speke, one of whom is virtually invisible, and one who is still yet to meet most of us it seems, there's nothing to encourage us to take it up with the council. Maybe they will be more able to reply without having the population of another area to deal with as well. In conclusion, I see the idea of splitting Speke Garston into two wards, with our own local councillors as a good one.
