This is ridiculous, why on Earth would you split southam up in so many ways and lump it in with other villages which have very different needs and demographics? There should be a multi councillor approach as there was pre 2015, those councillors then work together to ensure the best interests of southam are managed effectively. Southam is one town, it needs one clear plan and representation, not to be muddled in with smaller villages which should have their own councillor and strategies which are unique to them and their needs.
