I was the deputy Returning Officer and deputy Electoral Services Officer at Northumberland Council at the time of the last review. I am now retired. At the time, I thought it wrong to have two councillors representing the Alnwick Division. It is in my opinion an anomaly and blurs accountability especially given that the rest of the council was composed of one member divisions. I agree with the Commission's view that there should be 67 councillors but feel that the Alnwick Division should be split in two with one member representing each division.
