Its tempting to recommend that the small wards should be merged to make bigger wards, comparable to the ward sizes of rural areas, but I would ward against this. I think ward size should be decided on by the amount of work generated for councillors to do. For example, lower income areas of towns might need more councillor attention that wealthier areas and rural areas. I would ask for more resource in terms of councillor attention that we know to require it, specifically Queensway and Hemmingwell areas in Wellingborough. I would recommend that these remain separate wards.
