Very timely for a review given limited financial resources for local government.

Some people think that councillors only reach out to the public during election period.

Changing boundaries may confuse the residents, plus if councillor numbers were reduced, it may give a slimmed down services, cover wider areas.

Each ward has different dynamics and issues which current councillors focus in on and work with the limited services available.

In addition to this residents are not always aware of the input from councillors or their impact on service delivery and local projects.
