Related subject: Clee division/boundary of Nash

I disagree with the movement of the Nash boundary to cleobury.

The main commercial and population centres around clee hill and burford. Development decisions in these areas directly impact Nash for which we would have no say.

Cleobury is not in the same geophysical locality, most amenities in clee/tenbury which is closer.

The current boundary forms a natural group of villages houses etc including peoples, social, economic and amenity centres.
